VIOLENCE FOLLOWS DECISION.

GAYNOR REFUSED TO GRANT IN-JUNCTION AGAINST STRIKERS.

Non-Union Man Set Upon and Badly Beater on the Way to Work-Strikers Are Facouraged by the Court's Opinion to Harass Those Who Took Their Places.

Violence and intimidation have quickly followed the recent decision of Supreme Court Justice Gaynor, refusing an injunction to restrain striking employees of the firm of Herzog & Erbe, bookbinders of 83-87 Washington street, Brooklyn, from interfering with the persons who had taken their

The strike began a couple of weeks ago and when all the union men went out the firm filled their places with non-union men The strikers, it is alleged by the firm, at once started in to harass the new men, following them to and from their homes and threatening to make serious trouble for them if they did not give up their jobs.

In the application made last week to Justice Gaynor for an injunction Henry Boyer, counsel for the firm, presented affidavits setting forth the condition of affairs and the many acts of interference by the strikers. Justice Gaynor not only denied the application for an injunction on the ground that no actual violence had been committed, but filed this memorandum which could not fail to encourage the

This is not a case for an injunction in advance of a trial. No violence has been done to person or property. Capital and labor have an equal right to organize, as is now recognized by all sensible people. When they disagree, some friction is inevitable and legitimate. The courts should not interfere except in a case of obvious necessity. Where courts and Judges of first instance have gone beyond this it has been an abuse of power. These plaintiffs seem to have brought on the trouble by ostentatiously and needlessly posting in their factory a notice that they will not recognize the Bookbinders' Union. Wiser employers have learned that it is a convenient and useful thing to recognize lawful labor organizations and to deal with them.

The motion is denied, but all the persons concerned should be careful to break no law.

Mr. Boyer says that his failure to have the strikers restrained by legal methods made them still more aggressive and that their persecutions of the non-union workmen grew more frequent and threatening. "The men," he said, "are almost afraid to venture into the street. Their homes have been visited by representatives of the strikers and inducements have been offered to sever their connection with the firm. When their efforts failed to move the men themselves they talked with their wives and families and tried to get them to win their husbands and fathers over. The men remained loyal to their employers and the strikers grew more desperate."

men remained loyal to their employers and the strikers grew more desperate."

Mr. Boyer then told the story of how a non-union workman named Gustave Beauus had been attacked on Tuesday morning while on his way from his home at 125 Stanton street, Manhattan, to the factory.

Beauus, according to Mr. Boyer, on reaching the corner of Stanton and Ludlow streets was stopped by some strangers, one of whom struck and knocked him down and then kicked him until he was almost insensible. When he picked himself up, cut and bleeding, his assailant had disappeared.

Beaus is laid up at his home from the effects of the beating he received, and the doctors say he will not be able to resume work for several days. Although the identity of his assailant has not been established. lished, Mr. Boyer says there is no doubt that he was one of the strikers or some one in sympathy with them. The firm has employed private detectives to investigate the assault and watch the movements of the strikers. An appeal is also to be taken from Justice Gaynor's decision.

opinions of the Owner of the Famous Dwight Wheat Farm.

John W. Dwight, owner of the famous twelve-thousand-acre Dwight wheat farm in North Dakota, was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night. Speaking of crop prospects Mr. Dwight said:

"The advices I get as to the condition of the winter wheat crop are that in all the Middle States-Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri-the outlook is exceptionally good, as they have had a very favorable winter. I understand, however, that in winter. I understand, however, that in the western portion of Kansas, Nebraska and some portions of Oklahoma and the Indian Territory the crops are not looking so well. But this is not at all surprising, because last year the crop was the most enormous ever produced in that section of the country. It is too early yet to predict as to whether it will be short, but I do not see how it can be unless this is to be a year as to whether it will be short, but I do not see how it can be, unless this is to be a year of terrific drought. There have been enough favorable conditions to indicate a good average crop in Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma and the Far Western winter wheat States.

"The advices I get from the spring wheat country in the Northwest are all very favorable. It must be understood that in the spring wheat country, particularly in the great Red River Valley, they have only about one-half the rainfall that we have in the Eastern States. The ground there freezes very deep, from six to nine feet. Last fall when that country froze up, it was after very heavy rains—the heaviest feet. Last fall when that country froze up, it was after very heavy rains—the heaviest for several years—thereby leaving a great amount of moisture in the ground, which is very beneficial. The recent snow storms in that country have also done a great deal of good, and I do not think, after talking with Ex-Senator W. D. Washburn of Minnesota, and leading railroad men who give the spring wheat crop a great deal of careful consideration, that there has been as favorable an outleok as the present one in a number of years.

been as favorable an outlook as the present one in a number of years.

"I also understand," continued Mr. Dwight, "that the conditions existing west of the Rocky Mountains in the Pacific Slope States have been very favorable. They have had big rains there. From my experience, the outlook at the present experience, the outlook at the present moment, is exceedingly favorable to a very fine winter wheat crop."

SUICIDE IN WALL STREET.

W. Schafer Shot Himself While Seated at His Desk, Clgar in Hand. Oscar W. Schafer, 28 years old, Secretary and Treasurer of "William H. Baker" syracuse, a company incorporated for the manufacture of chocolate and cocoa, with New York offices at 80 Wall street, shot and killed himself in his private office at 80 Wall street, shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His relatives say they know of no reason for the suicide. Schafer who had been attending to business as usual went out to luncheon at 2 o'clock, returned in about an hour and went to his own office, next door to that of William H. Baker, President of the company.

He had been there but a few minutes when Mr. Baker heard the report of a pistol. He found Schafer sitting dead in a chair in front of his desk, his legs crossed, a cigar stub between the fingers of one hand and a revolver in the other. On his desk a slip of paper was found upon which was written:

Hacked His Throat in the Street.

Thomas M. Grant, a well-to-do dry goods man of San Francisco, tried to kill himself by cutting his throat on Worth street near West Broadwaya week ago Monday. Grant who is 53 years old, came here from San Francisco about two weeks ago, and when he made the attempt on his life was stopping at the Cosmopolitan Hotel at Chambers street and West Broadway. His New York office is at 99 Franklin street.

A week ago last Monday employees of the H. B. Claffin Company, who were work-ing in the basement saw Mr. Grant step be-hind some packing boxes on the sidewalk on the Worth street side, take out a pen-knife and begin hacking at his throat. Although it was noon and plenty of people were passing on the street the boxes pre-vented them seeing Grant. Decision of General Appraisers Upheld

UTICA, April 9.-Judge Coxe this morning filed a decision in an action brought inthe United States Circuit Court for the Southern district by Gabriel & Schall of New York against the United States, in which the decision of the Board of General Appraisers is upheld. The firm imported lithophone and the Collector assessed the duty at 1½ cents a pound as "sulphide of zinc, white." The importers contended that the merchandise should have been classified under paragraph 57. The appraisers held that lithophone was commercially known as sulphide of zinc, white.

SEND PRISONERLESS POOLROOM RAID BY HIS WHISKERS.

lobody "Tipped Off" in His Precinct, but He Fears the Scoundrels See Him Coming-Raided The. Allen Again

Police Headquarters in Mulberry 'street as seen to vibrate about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and word was passed that Capt. Chapman had raided a poolroom in the Bowery, "just behind the gray police building" and "in front of Commissioner Partridge's nose." To understand this it must be explained that Col. Partridge in his office sits facing the Bowery.

The police reporters dashed around to the Bowery. There was Capt. Chapman in a Napoleonic attitude, surrounded by three of his faithful sleuths, Burns, Delaney and Heaney. The captain's "real thing" Wardmen E. Wesley Hall and J. Schermerhorn McGuire were not in sight. It was said that they were afraid to venture on the Bowery in the glad Easter clothes they so proudly exhibit on Sixth avenue.

The captain is said to have a new assisant now well in training. His name is Jacobs. But Jacobs was not in sight either. "Ha, ha, tricked again b'gosh," was Capt Chapman's greeting to the reporters. "The miserable scoundrels fooled me. Right on that floor" [pointing to the second story of 338 Bowery] "I was sure there was a poolroom. I came here at the head of my men. The door was slammed, yes, slammed in my face. We put our shoulders to it and

"'We'll get 'em,' I shouted to my follow me and do not fear.'

"Upstairs we went and found some mer in a room. There were some racing sheets on the floor and a telephone. We took them. Boys, I tell you a captain's life is a hard one. We have to be on the alert at all "Did you make any arrests, captain?"

"How did you know these was a Feelbace."

"Gol darn it, I couldn't. Jiminy crimps, don't you fellers know I can't make an arrest unless I have evidence. I got to see a man taking money or holding a racing card in his hand. It's gosh-fired hard to get good evidence."

"How did you know there was a poolroom there?"

"Ha, ha, we got the telephone instrument and some racing sheets."

"Yes," echoed the faithful Delaney, taking a telephone instrument from under his coat, "there's the evidence. Oh, but the captain knows his business."

"You bet I'm right-fired smart," continued the bewhiskered one. "You fellers didn't hear of me raiding The, Allen's last Saturday, did you?"

"What happened?"

"Now, gol dum it, if I tell you fellers, you'll roast me."

"Did you get any prisoners?"

"Fly, fly to where the angels soar," said
Chapman, mysteriously.
"The truth of it is you didn't arrest anybody," the captain was told.

"Some one must tip these places off," the captain was told.

"Nothin' like that in my precinct. My detectives are faithful and tell no secrets."

"Your whiskers must scare 'em."

"I'm afraid so," and the captain stroked his hirsute ornaments fondly, gazing at the reflection of their luxuriance in a large mirror in a furniture store. "I guess to make an arrest I'll have to shave them clean off."

Cant. Chapman added that he had made. Capt. Chapman added that he had made thirty-three raids since he took charge of the precinct on Nov. 25, and had got only one prisoner.

"I'm making these raids under Inspector

Mr. Coler was chairman of the smaller Finance Committee last year. There was some opposition to his reappointment to the head of the committee and this, it is believed, delayed the announcement of the committee until after the Hon. ployed as a letter carrier, but his dismissal was necessary because of his habits.

His lawyer has filed an appeal to the county court and secured Harris's release from the county jail.

Harris when arrested was found in a notorious place in Liberty street. When arraigned he denied that he was guilty of public intoxication, but admitted that he was drunk. His sentence followed. Harris's contention is that he was "privately intoxicated" and that his offence does not come within the definition of "public intoxication." The case will be argued before County Judge Dunmore, who ordered his release pending the appeal. District Attorney Jerome said yesterday that he was looking over the evidence in the case against Gannon and would lay a complaint against him with the Commissioner of Police if the facts warranted it. He was not yet ready to prepare his complaint against two other police captains, who, so the wizards of Mulberry street say, are to be brought to the bar on charges Their Crews Rescued by Gallant Work of similar to those against Foody.

Who these two other commanders are, Mr. Jerome is not telling. A downtown The wreckage washed ashore in the gale at Point Pleasant, N. J., on Tuesday was captain is mentioned as a possibility. Other possibilities are two East Side commanders from the coal barges Mystic Belle and Mindora, formerly Yankee square-riggers, and a Harlem captain whose name is well which were in tow of the stanch steel ocean

A map of the Eldridge street precinct is now being made for Mr. Jerome. It shows all the disorderly houses and other resorts of interest to vice crusaders. Capt. "Smiling Dick" Walsh is in charge of that precinct. He has been accused of transferring a patrolman who pulled a saloon-keeper with a pull.

The tug's skipper reported that the Mystic Belle and the Mindora had broken adrift in the tumult. He managed, by hazarding his ship, to take off the crews of the two barges while holding on to the Kentucky, the leading barge in the tow.

The abandoned barges, aleak, took ground off Point Pleasant. The Mystic Belle was built at Medford, Mass., in 1867, and got her name from the Mystic River, on which she was launched. The Mindora was built at Boston in 1864. Capt. Walsh has been on the District Attorney's books for some time and is said to be one of the trio to be tried. The Eldridge street precinct has made trouble for more than one of its commanders. Here Capt. Herlihy pursued the career which resulted in an acquittal by the York Police Board and an indictment by the Grand Jury, which is to be tried out this month.

Grand Jury, which is to be tried out this month.

Capt. Foody appeared at Police Headquarters at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, the time set for his trial. Friends said he looked very ill and had lost twenty-five pounds since his sickness. Col. Partridge asked him if he was ready to go on. Attorney McManus of the firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge said that the firm had been retained in the case only the day before. Mr. Olcott was to try it. He had found that the charges involved no less than 780 distinct specifications of neglect of duty. He asked for time for a careful investigation. Moreover, he said, Capt. Foody was physically incapacitated from proceeding then.

"The request seems reasonable and we will not object to a postponement if the case will go on at the day set," said Mr. Jerome.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 9.—Post Office Inspector Gorman will leave here in the morning for Jersey City to see the three men suspected of the robbery at Hudson. In their flight they dropped a number of loose stamps and the police, by following the trail of stamps, traced the robbers to the mountain line of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. An eastbound freight passed there at 4 o'clock in the morning and it was concluded they had taken this.

NEXT SUNDAY AS DRY AGAIN Saloonkeepers Angry With Their Leaders All-Night Licenses in Demand.

District Attorney Jerome said last night that he expected that next Sunday would be another "legal Sunday" so far as the sale of liquors was concerned. He was called upon yesterday for an opinion as to whether a place having a hotel license could serve drinks to guests between 1 and 5 A. M. with meals or in their rooms. He declared it could not be done except with an all-night license. There has been a larger demand on the Mayor for all-night privileges since the police reform began. Liquor dealers are in much stress, however, because their central organization would not unite in an

All Soles look alike when Painted.

How many people know Oak sole leather, from Hemlock leather?

Yet it costs us over $113,000 yearly for that invisible difference, which adds a dollar to the wear of every pair of Regal Shoes.

Putting the Live Oak Sole of a $6.00 shoe, into Regals at $3.50, is one of the courageous and costly things which are NOT imitated.

Wear-or the knife, will prove that 90% of all other $3.50 shoes have common "Red," or Hemlock soles, under their black finish.

Woman's Newspaper Sunday

1128 Broadway, New York.

In these days when every cheap paragrapher pats himself on the back every time he says that woman has no sense of humor. The Sunday Sun is not in the least backward to admit that it is a woman's newspaper. Not that The Sunday Sun admits that it is for a minute without a sense of fun. Not for a minute. But because women do not, really like solemn things. They marry them sometimes, but that is for their own sweet purposes and is not material to this discussion.

of course no real womanly woman likes the sort of fun that appeals to some of the men all of us know. Thank the Lord for that! But for a sane, light-hearted sympathetic appreciation of this passing world, commend us to the average American girl, be she sixteen or sixty-six!

One of them who is somewhere between those two ages put the whole thing nicely and precisely the other day. She said: "They tell me it is time I learned to play whist, because the time is coming when I will be too old to amuse myself any other way. But I resist in the serene confidence that THE SUNDAY SUN will still be published then to be all the spice and the comfort that my declining years demand."

It is a fact that every Monday morning the mails are perceptibly swelled by the number of women who cut out the fashion pages of THE SUNDAY SUN and mail them to domestic and commercial dressmakers all over the United States.
